Your Honor:

I am a Senior Counsel in the Special Federal Litigation Division of the New York City Law Department, and one of the attorneys assigned to the defense of the above-referenced matter. Defendants write in opposition to Sow plaintiffs' motion to extend the December 22, 2023 Bar Date for 60 days until February 20, 2024, and to modify all subsequent dates in accordance with their requested extension. See ECF No. 185.

Sow plaintiffs' motion should be denied as we don't believe additional time is needed as the Grinnell factors have already been satisfied. 1 By their own admission, the return rate to date is well above the average at over 51%. As Sow plaintiffs acknowledged in their application, this return rate is a significantly large return rate for class actions. See, e.g., Hernandez v. Immortal rise, Inc., 306 F.R.D. 91, 100 (E.D.N.Y. 2015) (noting that a 20% participation rate is "well above average in class action settlements).

<sup>1</sup> Sow plaintiffs' preliminary approval motion analyzed the Grinnell factors as applied to this settlement. The reasons provided anticipated that those factors would weigh in favor of approving the class settlement. See ECF No. 166 (Plaintiffs' Memorandum of Law in Support of Motion for Preliminary Approval) at 10-15. Particularly, with respect to the reaction of the class to the settlement, with little to no objections or opt-outs and at an already high return rate to date, that expectation has been met.

While, of course, with more time additional class members may submit claim forms, Notices to the Class, which included claims packets to known class members and three publications, clearly announced when the class period would end for individuals to put in their claims, with a Bar Date of December 22, 2023, and the Fairness Hearing Date of February 22, 2024 where class members can be heard by the Court. Granting Sow plaintiffs' request would be disruptive and inefficient. To the extent that the Court is inclined to grant additional time, however, defendants respectfully submit that it should only be for 30 days with no further extensions. More than 30 days would not provide the Claims Administrator sufficient time to process all the claims and to provide the Court with the necessary information, and for the parties to submit their motions in advance of the scheduled February 22, 2024 Fairness Hearing.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter.

Respectfully submitted,

Jenny Weng
